HUNTING PERMISSION

To us, it is unthinkable that one would go upon another's property, armed with a gun, and shoot game without first seeking and obtaining the permission of the landowner. Howver, it is because there are so many offenders of this basic hunting procedure, that laws are passed to protect property owners, and many owners "post" their land.

There are few enough choice hunting areas open to the average sportsmen. Game reserves multiply and "hunting clubs" pay a nominal fee for leasing hunting areas. And "posted" signs greet Mr. Average Hunter on every hand. The fellow who likes to go out once in a while and take a few shots at game, has to face encirclement by an iron curtain of rules. But he brought much of this on himself by violating the basic laws of courtesy and respect for the other fellow's property. It is not too late, we hope, for him to redeem himself by resolving never to hunt on another's land without first securing permission.

LEARNING TO BUY

(From Winchester Star)

Surely few persons will dispute the assertion that learning to earn an income isn't enough in these times. Learning to use that income wisely after one has it is equally important.

With this in mind, the National Educational Association has come forward with a timely recommendation to school administrators: Instruct children how to become intelligent, effective and conscientious consumers.

Teach them to become good buyers, says the NEA. While girls are learning to cook meat in home economics courses, for instance, they can just as well learn to buy them, too, so that the family money will go round. Nowadays it may be more important to learn to buy ready-made clothes than to make them for oneself—and boys should be taught this as well as girls.

There's no use merely reading about advertising and the careful use of labels when the students are surrounded every day by ads and labeled goods that can be examined as samples. Furthermore, experienced housewives, store buyers and experts from every field can be brought right into the classroom to advise firsthand.

The NEA is to be commended for supporting a belief that has been growing in the minds of schoolmen as well as parents and others—that education must increasingly help students to deal with the practical problems of everyday life.

COURTESY AND THE LAW

(From Shelby Daily Star)

We concur with a Georgia court which has just ruled that courtesy is not compelled by law.

At first that may sound like a blow to the peace of the community. We think of how much more pleasant motoring is when drivers are civil and courteous to each other. We think of how much nicer it is to be neighbors when we can speak and act pleasantly in the face of chickens roaming in the garden or a wayward dog tearing up a flower bed.

Courtesy is so important to living that from time to time we have wondered why the statutes do not require it.

But then it occurs to us that if courtesy were required, it would no longer be courtesy. It is one of life's big extras which is either participated in voluntarily, or not at all.

In our estimate a statutory "Good Morning"; a "pardon me please" enforced by the law, would be as cold as Little America.

Courtesy often transends the law and makes its enforcement to the letter unnecessary.

We are glad that some of the acts of mankind, as important as they are, are entered into without threat of force. These are the acts which make life worth living.

Creative Power of Faith

Lesson for October 19, 1947

THIS lesson takes us to the Westminster Abbey of the Bible—Hebrews, eleventh through the thirteenth chapters—to meditate for a season upon the valiant men in the long ago who obtained a good report as they stood at the passage of destiny and sounded the trumpets of triumph, even the trumpets of faith.

The reader will be richly rewarded to stop right here and open his or her Bible and read these three chapters. Your attention will be riveted to the word, faith.

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. For by it the elders obtained a good report. Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of "things which do appear." Hebrews 11:1-3.

A Journey to a New Land

I WANT the boys and girls to look at the passage which describes how Abraham, "when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went."

How could Abraham leave his pleasant situation in Ur? Through faith in God, and that alone. A memory verse is here suggested: "I will trust, and will not be afraid." Isaiah 12:2. Abraham might well have been afraid of unknown enemies, of disease, of poverty. Men do become afraid of these things, unless their faith is in God. But Abraham believed in God—had faith in God. And he went forth, holding the hand of God.

There is creative power in such a faith. Abraham discovered that every step he took was accompanied by God. He built altars. He talked with God, and God talked with him. Such will be the experience of every boy and girl who stakes his or her all upon implicit faith in God.

* * *

What Faith Can Do

INTERMEDIATES are considering what they will do with their lives. It is the vitally important period when they are wistfully considering a life career. This lesson would seem to clearly indicate that God has a purpose and plan for each life. He will reveal that plan to those who trust him for guidance. Faith in God at this point is absolutely essential if we are to live victoriously.

Read again the eleventh chapter of Hebrews and see how these heroes of faith in the long ago cast themselves wholly into the will of God for their lives. We can have no doubt about their ultimate success.

Parents and teachers are here reminded of their solemn responsibility in pointing intermediate boys and girls to the truth of Sunday's lesson. Life is too valuable, too fleeting, to be frittered away in purposeless drifting.

Faith is the bright shaft of God's presence and power to guide young people into his will. It is the unfailing light to direct their steps daily. It is the creative power to sustain them each step of the way.

* * *

This Power at Work

TAKE any one of the characters portrayed in these three chapters of Hebrews and see how faith in God produced men and women who changed the course of history.

Young people are interested in biography. I would commend to you the lives of the great men and women of modern times, who lived in the creative power of faith in God.

John Wesley, for example. There was a man whose life, when strangely warmed by the spirit of God, lifted England from the depths of secularism and set her feet once more on the highway of worthy achievement.

Martha Berry is another splendid example. Miss Berry devoted her life to God's will and purpose to open doors of opportunity to the under-privileged boys and girls of the southern mountain areas. Today, at Mt. Berry, stands a school with the largest campus in the world—a school which reveals what one life can accomplish when that life is built by the creative power of faith in the Living God.

"Take my life and let it be, Consecrated, Lord, to Thee."

A SOUTHERN PECULIARITY

* * *

I have mentioned before a speech peculiarity heard principally in the South—that of saying "pin" for pen, "stin" for cent, "din" for den. I am unable to account for this short "i" sound, although it may be a survival from the Elizabethan speech of Colonial days brought from Southern England to Virginia and spreading thence to other southern states.

At any rate, Southerners should watch their tendency to say, "minny min have sint for pinny pincils and tin cint fountain pins."

I know from first-hand observation that the habit is an extremely hard one to break. But it can be done, and the consequent improvement in speech will make the effort more than worthwhile.

A. A friend inkists on calling a sick person an "in-VAL-id." How can I convince her that she is wrong?—Mrs. O.

Answer: Take her gently by the hand and lead her to the nearest dictionary where she will find that there are two "invalids." The first is an adjective, meaning "not valid; void; null," pronounced: in-VAL-id. The second is a noun, meaning "a person disabled by a chronic illness," pronounced: IN-vuh-lid.

Y. W. A.'S MEET

The Susie Whittinghill Y.W.A.'s of Liberty Baptist Church met with the Spout Spring Y.W.A.'s October 7, with Mrs. Julian Franklin, of Spout Spring. The meeting was called to order by the president and the roll was called, after which the minutes were read by the secretary, Miss Florence McFadden had charge of the devotional, preceeding prayer, by Mrs. Alfred Harwood, Jr.

Miss Patsy Booth had charge of the program and a very interesting one on Mexico was presented. Miss Beulah White gave a travalogue on Mexico, after which Miss Booth told a story of the conversion of two Mexican women. An interesting article on, "Mexico Must Be Christian," was presented, also by Miss White. The meeting closed with the singing of the Y.W.A. hymn, "Oh, Zion Haste," and the benediction by Mrs. J. Marshall Walker. A duffle bag was given to the Spout Spring Y.W.A.'s to fill for overseas relief. Tithing was urged at this meeting, as it is the hope of the Southern Baptist Convention to secure a million tithers for the months of October, November and December. The next meeting will be held on October 21 with Miss Pauline Layne.

GM GENERAL MOTORS HYDRA-MATIC DRIVE *Optional at extra cost

These words from Oldsmobile's new "radio song" have never been so aptly illustrated as in a typical ride to a football game. There's often a long distance to be covered. There's always traffic to contend with. Yet, if you're the driver of an Oldsmobile with Hydra-Matic Drive, you can... "Just forget the clutch and gear. All you do is sit and steer!" That's true in football traffic, or any other traffic. True on the highway, too. Hydra-Matic Drive takes care of all gear shifting—automatically—through four forward speeds. And the clutch pedal is eliminated completely!

What makes it even more impressive... this will be the ninth football season in which Hydra-Matic Drive has enabled Oldsmobile-owning fans to go to the games the easy way. GM Hydra-Matic Drive is a fully perfected, fully proved feature—and there's still nothing else on the market to compare with it.

Oldsmobile introduced Hydra-Matic Drive® 8 years ago. Today, Oldsmobile is still the lowest-priced car to offer it. Add to this Oldsmobile's traditional style-leadership—plus Oldsmobile's all-round, fine-car quality—and you'll see why so many football fans are Oldsmobile fans as well. You'll agree that...
